Medieval Astrology Profile for Sigmund Freud

File History: Initial 24-Jan-2014; Tables Revised 29-Jun-2016

Introduction to delineation of appearance and character in natal astrology. The following document is a hand-written analysis of Sigmund Freud, using the principles of medieval predictive astrology. The discipline of natal astrology focuses on the fate of an individual based on a horoscope cast for the moment of birth. Within natal astrology, the 1st house occupying the eastern horizon at birth describes the native: physical vitality, appearance, and character. Between the Hellenistic and Medieval eras several specialized models were developed to assess these characteristics. They include longevity (vitality and length of life), physiognomy (form and shape of the face and body), victor of the chart (overall life purpose), manners (social conduct including ethical behavior), and temperament (elemental mix of fire, earth, air, and water with applications in medical astrology). Prior research has presented models and results for longevity (A Rectification Manual: The American Presidency, Chapter 4) and physiognomy (Astrological Physiognomy: History and Sources & Astrological Physiognomy: Empirical Tests of the Leo Rising Decan).

Victor of the Chart. Included are two competing models for computing the victor of the chart said to be the single most powerful planet in the horoscope. According to Plato's follower Porphyry, the planet signifying the victor of the chart by configuration in the natal horoscope shows the life choice made by the soul prior to incarnation. Plato explains the details of his soul model in The Myth of Er found in the closing pages of The Republic. Porphyry and his peer Antiochus offer specific rules for determining the victor of the chart. The method of Antiochus/Porphyry is compared to a later method for determining the victor suggested by the Jewish Rabbi Abraham ben Meir ibn Ezra, a philosopher and astrologer active in the 12th century. For a discussion of these two models, see the companion paper Victor of the Chart: Testing Methods of Antiochus/Porphyry and Ibn Ezra, which serves as a key to what is presented here.

Manners. Plato was not alone among Greek philosophers in conceiving models for the soul. Aristotle's model of vegetative, sensitive, and intellective soul levels (assigned respectively to the plant, animal, and human kingdoms) was taken up by Ptolemy, who found a correspondence between the sensitive and intellective soul and Moon and Mercury in the natal horoscope. The configuration of the Moon and Mercury, with special emphasis given to their rulers, is a second method for analyzing the soul. Ptolemy introduces this model in Tetrabiblos III.13 "Of the Quality of the Soul." Subsequent authors refer to this model as the "Significators of the Soul" or "Manners." A summary template for the Moon and Mercury is presented in the paper and will be developed further in future versions.

"Austrian psychiatrist and founder of psychoanalysis, the most influential psychological theorist of 20th-century. Freud's theories, including the concept of the Oedipus complex, have had an enormous influence on art, literature, and social thinking. His fundamental idea was that all humans are endowed with an unconscious in which potent sexual and aggressive drives, and defenses against them, struggle for supremacy. Freud once stated: "The only unnatural sexual behavior is none at all." It is often asserted that Freud "discovered" the unconscious mind. However, the idea is found in the work of many thinkers and authors from the times of Homer.

"The interpretation of dreams is the royal road to a knowledge of the unconscious activities of the mind." (in The Interpretation of Dreams, 1900)

"Sigmund Freud was born of Jewish parentage in Freiburg, Moravia, Austria-Hungary (now the Czech Republic), the first of seven children. His mother Amalia Nathansohn was twenty years younger than his father, the wool merchant Jakob Freud; Amalia was his third wife. When his business failed, the family moved in 1860 to Vienna, where discriminating laws against the Jews had been canceled during 1850s and 1860s. Jacob was a gentle and loving father, but young Sigmund resented his weakness and mediocrity; he never managed to get back on his feet financially. Freud likened him to Charles Dickens' Mr. Micawber, an impratical optimist, in David Copperfield.

"When he was two and a half years old, Freud's "libido toward matrem was awakened" by seeing his mother naked on a train journey. Moreover, Freud acquired a lifelong travel phobia. Freud studied medicine at the University of Vienna under Josef Breuer, a Viennese physician. Breuer had with some success treated patients by encouraging them to "talk out" their past under hypnosis. In 1895 they coauthored Studies in Hysteria. It was an account of the treatment of "Anna O.," a hysterical patient, whom Freud himself never treated.

"From 1882 to 1886 Freud worked at the General Hospital, where he experimented with cocaine. Calling it a "magical substance" he noted how a small dose lifted him to the heights "in a wonderful fashion." Freud's monograph, Über Coca, came out in 1884.

"In 1885 Freud went to Paris to study under Jean Martin Charcot at the Salpetrière Hospital. There the hypnotic treatment of women, who suffered from a medical state called "hysteria," led Freud to take an interest in psychiatry. After returning to Vienna, Freud married Martha Bernays; they had six children. His private practice Freud opened in 1886. Their address from 1891 was Berggasse 19, where the family lived until 1938. Freud exhaustively psychoanalysed his youngest daughter Anna, but his sons were not allowed to study medicine, especially psychoanalysis was a forbidden subject for them.

"Throughout his life, Freud suffered from depression and paranoia. On the recommendation of Wilhelm Fleiss, a Berlin nose and and throat physician and his most intimate friend in the 1890s, Freud attempted to treat his mood swings with cocaine. Fleiss's study The Relationship between the Nose and the Female Sexual Organ (1897) was dismissed by a contemporary critic as "disgusting gobbledygook." Freud considered his friend's theories bold and revolutionary and withdrew from the editorial board of the journal that had published the review. His addiction lasted about 12 years, to the death of his father.

"By 1896 Freud had found the key to his own system, naming it psychoanalysis. The major innovation was that he had replaced hypnosis with "free association." In 1900 Freud published his first major work, The Interpretation of Dreams, which established the importance of psychoanalytical movement. One of Freud's most famous early failures happened in the same year. In October he began treating an 18-year-old woman, Ida Bauer, better known by the pseudonym Dora. After 11 weeks, she stopped treatment, leaving much of the analytic work undone.

"In 1902 Freud was appointed Ausserordentlicher Professor, and in 1905 appeared Three Essays on the Theory of Sexuality. At the suggestion of a disciple, Freud founded in 1902 the Psychological Wednesday Society, later transformed into the Viennna Psychoanalytic Society. After the Third International Psychoanalytic Congress in Weimar in 1911, Freud met Lou Andreas-Salomé, the Russian intellectual. Beloved by Nietzsche, whom she rejected, she had been the traveling companion and lover of the poet Rainer Maria Rilke. Andreas-Salomé was still in her fifties youthful-appearing. When Freud first encountered her, he warned one of his younger followers that she was "a woman of dangerous intelligence" but that "all the tracks around her go into the Lion's den but none come out." For a brief period, Andreas-Salomé was Freud's closest woman pupil and she was allowed to attend regularly the internal Wednesday gatherings at Bergstrasse 19. "Frau Lou" was also close to Freud's daughter Anna (1895-1982). Andreas-Salomé never questioned Anna's adoration of her famous father. Later Anna Freud, who never married, became a major force in British psychology, spezializing in the application of psychoanalysis to children. her best known works include The Ego and the Mechanism of Defence (1936).

"In 1909 Freud went with Carl Jung on a lecture tour in the United States and met, among others, the American philosopher and psychologist William James (see under his brother, the writer Henry James). Jung's close collaboration with Freud lasted until 1913. Jung had become increasingly critical of Freud's exclusively sexual definition of libido and incest. The publication of Jung's Symbols of Transformation (1912) led to a final break. Freud believed that Jung subconsciously wanted to kill him.

"I always recognized Freud's greatness and genius, but he was extremely headstrong. He came out of nowhere and the world was hostile towards him. He had to be obstinate to gain acceptance. Had he not been obstinate, his theory would have remained unknown... Once he said to me:we have to turn the theory of the unconscious into a dogma, to make it immovable. Why a dogma, I replied, since sooner or later truth will have to win out? Freud explained: We need a dam against the black tide of mud of occultism." (in C.G. Jung Speaking, ed. William McGuire, and R.F.C. Hull, 1978)

"By the beginning of the 1920s, Freud's writing had given rise to several associates of psychoanalysis. However, Freud himself took part only halfheartedly in the polemics of the movement; he was nearly muted: a series of operations for mouth cancer, beginning in 1923, made him unable to perform in public, and moreover, he grew increasingly weary and disillusioned. He published Group Psychology and the Analysis of the Ego (1921), The Future of an Illusion (1927), and C*ivilization and Its Discontents* (1929), all dealing with large cultural issues.

“In spite of the recognition of his work Freud was never awarded with the Nobel Prize, but in 1928 an attempt was made for his nomination. This was supported by Alfred Döblin, Jacob Wassermann, Bertrand Russell, A.S. Neill, Lytton Strachey, Julian Huxley, Knut Hamsun, Thomas Mann. Albert Einstein didn't join the campaign, although he had been in correspondence with Freud. Noteworthy, Freud's work was known in English in a relatively complete edition before it was in German. The earliest translator was Abraham Arden Brill; James Strachey's Standard Edition is considered at the same time awe-inspiring and somewhat flawed.

"Thomas Mann points out that Freud is deeply involved in the irrationalism of the beginning of the new century because of the nature of the material of his enquiry, the unconscious, passions, instincts and dreams. But Freud is really connected not only with this neo-romantic movement, in which the subterranean regions of the life of the mind are the central point of interest, but at the same time with the beginning and origins of the whole aspect of romantic thought which goes back to the pre-civilized and the pre-rational. There is still an abundant share of Rousseauism in the pleasure with which he describes the freedom of the uncivilized man of instinct." (Arnold Hauser in The Social History of Art, 1951)

“After Hitler's seizure of power, psychoanalytic work came to an end in Germany, and Freud's books were burnt in Berlin. His views also were condemned in the USSR . At the request of the league of Nations, Freud collaborated with Albert Einstein in writing Why War? (1933) When Nazis invaded Austria, Freud was permitted to move to London after paying a large ransom. According to a story, German authorities made him sign a document stating that he had been treated with "respect and consideration." Freud wrote, "I can heartily recommend the Gestapo to anyone." However, when the original document was later found, it contained no such comment.

“Freud died of throat cancer three weeks after the outbreak of WW II in 1939. His death on September 23, 1939 was eased by euthanasia – Freud asked his physician to give him a lethal dose of morphine. His last book, Moses and Monotheism (1939), was completed in England. Freud dismissed Jung's concept of a "collective unconscious" and offered instead his own idea of "archaic inheritance." According to Freud, Moses was an Egyptian, who gave to the Jews the religion of monotheism, and was murdered in the wilderness. "The founding of the Mohammedan religion seems to me to be an abbreviated repetition of the Jewish one," Freud wrote, but Islam "lacked the profundity which the Jewish religion resulted from the murder of its founder."

“Freud's theories have been questioned by many scholars. The knowledge of brain's electrical behavior have brought new views in the interpretation of dreams. Freud, along with Karl Marx (1818-1883) and Albert Einstein (1879-1955), revolutionarized modern Western thinking. But when Marx's thoughts have become unpopular after the fall of the Soviet Union, psychoanalysis has not experienced a similar decline. Like "dialectical materialism," psychoanalytic theories cannot be adequately tested or falsified. The Austrian-British philosopher Karl Popper argued that Freud's psychoanalytic theories have in fact more in common with primitive myth than with science – "they resembled astrology rather than astronomy." (Karl Popper in Conjectures and Refutations, 1963, pp. 44-45)

“One of the most passionate discussions of Freud's life and work arose in 1984. A young analyst-in-training, Jeffrey Moussaieff Masson, claimed in his provocative book Suppression of the Seduction Theory that many of Freud's patients were assaulted sexually in their childhoods by adults, but Freud did not analyze the genuineness of the abuse. Anthony Storr, a psychiatrist and the author of The Art of Psychotherapy and The Essential Jung, noted in his review of the book that "anyone who is at all familiar with Freud's writings will know that, in the early days of psychoanalysis, Freud considered hysterical symptoms to be the consequence of traumatic experiences, and these traumatic experiences were invariably sexual in nature." (New York Times, February 12, 1984) However, after self-analysis and discovering his 'Oedipus complex', based on fantasy, not on reality, he concluded that although assaults took place in childhood, it could not generally be considered the cause of hysteria or other neuroses."

Glossary: Castration anxiety: a boy's unconscious fear of losing his penis; Ego: the minds mechanism for keeping in touch with reality, it refers the conflict between id and superego; Freudian slip: a seemingly meaningless slip of the tongue that reveals an unconscious thought; Id: the part of mind from which primal needs and drives emerge; Oedipus complex: children in their phallic phase (ages three to six) form an erotic attachment to the parent of the opposite sex, and concomitant hatred of the parent of the same sex; Penis envy: girls try to deal with their "inferiority", they wish they had penis; Repression: the keeping of unacceptable ideas from consciousness – i.e. in the "unconscious"; Super-Ego: the self-criticizing part of the mind out of which the conscience develops

Freud also enjoyed Agatha Christie's and Dorothy Sayers's mystery novels in later years. Other favorites: Goethe, Schiller, Heinrich Heine, Wilhelm Busch, Arthur Schnitzler, Stefan Zweig. - Freud's theories were also largely mocked in literature. Hungarian playwright Ferenc Molnar presented an idea, where a young man is happily married with his mother, but finds out that she is not really his mother and commits suicide. James Thurber and E.B. White published Is Sex Necessary? or, Why You Feel the Way You Do (1929), where they caricaturized psychoanalytical terms. Note 2: Hogarth Press, Freud's publisher in England, was owned by Leonard and Virginia Woolf.

Rectification

Available Birth Data

Astrodatabank reports an AA-rated 6:30 p.m. birth time. The proposed rectification is slightly earlier.

Stage I. Determine the Ascendant sign

For an AA-rated birth time, the objective of Stage I rectification is confirm the Ascendant sign. By configuration of the chart, Venus ruler of the 12th is placed in the 6th. According to William Lilly (Christian Astrology, Book 2, Chapter 92), this is one sign of demonic possession. Venus/Aries in detriment signifies lust, greed, and other perversions of Venusian activities. Conjunction to the North Node amplifies these tendencies. While it's debatable whether or not Freud was possessed, certainly Venus as significator of cocaine addiction (early career) and of sexual libido matches Freud's obsession with sex and drugs as a dominant life theme. Venus ruling the 12th in the 6th strongly suggests the accuracy of the Scorpio Ascendant.

For the 6:30 time, the 2nd decan of Scorpio rises. Decan ruler Jupiter/Pisces suggests a phlegmatic body type. While Freud did tend to girth in middle years, his bulk appears a better match to the solidity of Taurus (Sun and Mercury) rather than the water weight of Jupiter/Pisces. With the shape of the face ovate, odds favor the 1st decan of Scorpio rises, with Mars/Libra and its ruler Venus/Aries both giving rise to ovate shapes in Willner's physiognomy model. This evidence suggests the birth time is slightly earlier.

Stage II. Determine the Ascendant's range within 1-4 degrees

Dynamic activity to lots is the primary focus of Stage II rectification. For the final rectified time, the lot of marriage of men a/c Hermes is 6VI36. The following two measurements are very accurate:

14-Sep-1886. tr. North Node 6VI18'48"; Marriage to Martha Bernays.
2-Nov-1951. tr. South Node 6VI35'51"; (Posthumous) death of Martha Bernays.

Stage III. Determine the exact Degree and Minute of the Ascendant

Solar Arc Directions

At this point, I have insufficient measurements to 'lock down' the rectification.
Nevertheless the ASC-Mars solar arc which exactly times the death of Fleischel appears promising.

22-Oct-1891. c.s.a. ASC conj Mars. Death of Fleischel. Mars rules 6th, 8th from 11th.

30-Aug-1909. d.s.a. North Node conj Moon.
American trip and Clark University lectures, 8/11-Sep-1909.

26-Sep-1930. d.s.a. Mars conj Moon. Death of mother, 12-Sep-1930.

Primary Directions

Sun-Venus directions appear the best directional timer of Freud's early attraction to cocaine. Venus/Aries signifies the drug itself; placement in the 6th ill health; rulership of the 12th, problems as cocaine ultimately harmed his career and reputation.

Freud's cocaine research years were 1882-1886. While there is no exact date of Freud's first cocaine usage, Freud did write his fiancée Martha on 21-Apr-1884 of his early experiments.

PT	D	Saturn/Libra	P	Mars d. => MC	14-Jul-1896
PT	D	Saturn/Libra	P	Mars (l=MA) d. => MC	4-Feb-1897

This sequence includes the death of Freud's father on 23-Oct-1896 which led Freud away from the use of hypnosis in therapy to self-analysis with the Oedipus complex as a central theme in 1897. Ascendant ruler Mars in the 12th by whole sign houses is consistent with self-analysis of psychological problems. By quadrant houses, Mars is placed in the 11th (death of father).

Death

Freud suffered a long and painful death from throat cancer, the result of his tobacco use. He reportedly smoked twenty cigars a day. The following directional evidence suggests the Lot of Fortune is the releaser. The broad range of Mars-Lot of Fortune directions are a match to the final years of his illness. Further investigation of dates of Freud's multiple surgeries (against this date list) would help to lock down the rectification.

PT	D	Jupiter/Sagittarius	P	Lot of Fortune d. => Mars	27-Apr-1929
PT	D	Jupiter/Sagittarius	P	Lot of Fortune d. => Mars (l=MA)	30-May-1929
REG	D	Jupiter/Sagittarius	P	Lot of Fortune d. => Mars	15-Mar-1934

REG	D	Saturn/Libra	P	Mars c. => Lot of Fortune	26-Sep-1938
REG	D	Saturn/Libra	P	Mars (l=MA) c. => Lot of Fortune	10-Jun-1939

Freud's final surgery was early September 1938 (next to last direction).
Freud died 23-Sep-1939 after asking for his physician to administer an overdose of morphine on 21-Sep-1939 (planned years in advance).

Model Summary

(for model details see www.regulus-astrology.com/research.html)

Physiognomy

Ascendant sign: Scorpio
Ascendant sign ruler: Mars/Libra-rx
Ascendant decan: Scorpio
Ascendant decan ruler: Mars/Libra-rx
Planets/Nodes placed in the Ascendant sign or decan: Mars/Libra is consistent with the ovate shape of Libra a/c Willner's physiognomy model;

Longevity: 83y 4m 17d

Releaser and kadukkudhāh. Figure is diurnal and Sun/Taurus/7th qualifies as releaser. Bound lord Jupiter in his own sign rulership sextiles the Sun and is the kadukkudhah. Jupiter gives his 79 major years; square from Saturn deducts 30 minor years; net is 49 years. Freud lived longer. The only way to push the envelope here is to classify Saturn as a malefic in good state; as Saturn rules Gemini by diurnal triplicity, rules the bound, and ruled the decan. If so, then Saturn deducts only 1/3 of his minor years. Net projection 79 - (30 * 1/3) = 69 years. This is two years following Freud's first cancer operation at the age of 67 and is a reasonable longevity match.

Victor of the Chart: Mercury/Taurus

Both methods give Venus a slight edge over Mercury, Mars, and Jupiter as the victor candidate. By life affairs, Jupiter/Pisces is the best significator of Freud's daughter Anna who would care for Freud as a 24/7 nurse on call during Freud's 17 years of illness. In addition, Anna managed her father's legacy well and became an internationally known child psychologist. Mars/Libra in detriment, retrograde, and placed in the 12th house will be difficult to justify as victor on astrological grounds though Mars rules the Ascendant sign.

We are left with the choice of Mercury or Venus. Clearly, Venus signifies Freud's intoxication with sexual libido as the cause of all neurosis. Venus is the 12th house lord; no surprise. To the extent this theme defined his life Freud's victor can identified as Venus. True Venus is powerful amplified by conjunction to the North Node, but she demonstrates little other technical evidence in her favor, save applying to her bound lord Saturn which helps to restrain her actions. This leaves Mercury/Taurus as victor making Freud an 'analyst' of neurosis (ruled by Venus). Mercury is occidental, within a degree of moving out of the sunbeams, and angular in the 7th.

With Freud we have one of the clearest examples of what happens when one planet rules another and both are inconjunct which is a condition defined as 'generosity'. Often expressed as two planets 'not seeing' each other, consider that Freud seated his clients on a couch and purposely turned away from them during sessions in order 'not' to see them. While Freud did hear and make notes during client sessions, he tended to view all patient neuroses as sexual whether or not they actually were.

Manners: Venus or Mars-Venus.
